STRATHCLYDE Business School has gained an international reputation as one of the most respected business schools in Europe.

Established 50 years ago, the school has a long history of producing qualified graduates with many of them working in some of the world's largest and most influential organisations.

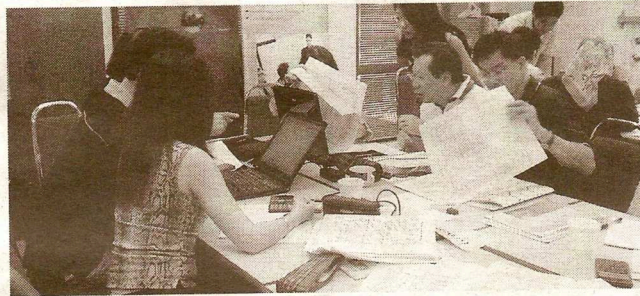

There are about 2,000 students enrolled in an MBA through the full-time and international programmes.

The business school has more than 200 academic staff and one of the biggest faculties in Europe.

Despite its size, the school is committed to classes of no more than 65 students to provide a collaborative learning experience.

In terms of research, the school is one of the highest rated in the UK and all its professors have international reputation for their work.

It is accredited by the Association of MBAs, the European Foundation for Management Development and the Association of American Collegiate Body.

The business school offers a wide range of subject areas and MBA electives.

This is made possible in part by the multidisciplinary outlook of its academic staff, most of whom are involved in research and whose work has been published widely.

Offering pioneering management education and training, the main programme is the Master's of Business Administration or MBA.

This is available full-time and part-time in Glasgow and by flexible learning in other centres around the world.

The Strathclyde MBA is conducted as a part-time programme at CDC Management Institute.
